Farm, Home and Garden.

Short, pointed statements of methods and results in Crow Wing county are requested for this column. Address all communications to Farm Editor, Box 1516, Brainerd, Minn.

Have you planted those cabbage, tomato and celery seed in a box in the house yet? If not it should be done at once.
By the way if you have any extra tomato seed after the box is planted save it and plant it in the garden, right where you want the plants to stand, and plant it early. Plant it when you plant your early radish and lettuce. If it comes up before danger and frost is over cover the plants with newspapers on cold nights, placing a bit of wood or stone on the corners of the paper to hold it in place.

It won't be long until it will be time to clean up the back yards, and the front ones, too. The sooner it is gotten at the better. If the yard is cleaned up as soon as the snow is off, then there is the more time to give to the garden work when the ground is ready. The seasons are so short here that it is necessary to get the garden in just as early as possible to get the best results.

Farmers who have saved their own seed corn should also make a test of it at this time. A good way is to count out 100 kernels and plant them in a box in the house, when they are well up count the number of vigorous shoots

and you have the per cent of the seeds that may be depended upon to grow.
The man who buys his seed should also secure it early enough to test it in the same way. Expert corn raisers insist in buying their seed corn on the ear only, and will not touch shelled seed corn, declaring that it is thus possible to reject the imperfect kernels that are to be found in the tip and butt of each ear. It also enables them to tell whether or not the corn was well filled out at the tip of the ear.

In fact in no part of farming or gardening is care more essential than in the selection of the seed or seeds. With seed of low germinative power plants, even if they come up, are slow of growth and unproductive, while the vigorous seed the growth is much more rapid and the crop sure. The old theory that small potatoes made as good seed as large ones is being discarded by the most successful potato raisers in the country, who now hold that only the large potatoes can be depended upon to raise good crops.

Do not forget to plan to have a piece of sowed corn for feed for your milch cows during August when, if the season is even usually dry there will be several weeks when the pasture is short and a patch of sowed corn will not only help out the butter jar or the cream check, but what is worth more will keep the cows from shirking in their flow of milk.
Once a cow has partially dried up from insufficient green food it is impossible to bring them back to the previous flow.

Saved Her Son's Life

The happiest mother in the little town of Ava, Mo., is Mrs. S. Ruppee. She writes: "One year ago my son was down with such serious lung trouble that our physician was unable to help him; when,
by our druggist's advice I began giving him Dr. King's New Discovery, and I soon noticed improvement. I kept this treatment up for a few weeks when he was perfectly well. He has worked steadily since at carpenter work. Dr.
King's New Discovery saved his life." Guaranteed best cough and cold cure

AGRARIAN DISORDERS

FARMS IN NORTHERN MOLDAVIA
ARE DEVASTATED AND THOU-SANDS ARE HOMELESS.

PEASANT UPRISING SPREADS

SANGUINARY CONFLICTS OCCUR
BETWEEN RIOTERS AND SOL-DIERS IN THE CITIES.

Vienna, March 23.—The seriousness of the situation in Northern Moldavia growing out of the agrarian disorders, according to the latest telegraphic reports reaching here from Czernowitz,
on the border, has not been exaggerated.

From estimates just made it appears that 400 farms in Moldavia have been devastated, 8,000 fugitives have fled over the Roumanian frontier into Austria and a total of 10,000 Jews are homeless.

The number of dead and wounded cannot be given accurately but the latest reports give a total of about 85 men killed and in the neighborhood of 150 wounded.

The outbreak seems to have been partially suppressed in the district of Botosani, but the latest reports are that the movement is spreading southward into Wallachia and even into the Austrian crown land of Bokowina. The Roumanian government is still sending troops into the afflicted district. Practically the entire province of Moldavia has been involved.

The movement is really more agrarian than anti-Semitic. The peasants are in revolt against the great farming trust, which has leased half the cultivated lands in Moldavia. The absentee landlords who control the trust happen to be Jews and this fact brings the ire of the peasants down upon any and all Jews they meet and to this antipathy is added strong racial feeling arising from other causes.

On Thursday 500 peasants tried to invade Michaileni. In spite of the fact that there was a sufficient number of Roumanian troops in this town to stop the rioters, the peasants at first got the upper hand because the soldiers, acting upon the orders of the prefect of the town, were not permitted by their officers to open fire. In the face of the menaces of the furious peasants, however, some of the soldiers did fire against orders. This volley killed 15 of the rioters and wounded 54, whereupon the peasants withdrew.

Looted and Burned Buildings.

A more successful attack was made as Vaslui, to the south of Jassy. Here a body of 2,000 peasants forced their way into the town. The prefect of Vaslui did not have sufficient troops at his command to stop the onward
march of the infuriated countrymen.
He stood by, a helpless witness, while the rioters in an incredibly short space of time plundered practically all the buildings on the three principal streets of Vaslui and then set them on fire.
The peasants had looted freely, and the fire completed the work of destruction.

The prefect sent in a hurried appeal for reinforcements and the peasants, in ignorance of this step, remained in the town until the soldiers arrived. There then ensued a serious fight up and down the burned streets.
Twenty rioters were killed and many wounded. The commander of the troops, Major Calori, sustained serious injuries.

The entire Roman district was up in arms. Here the authorities were powerless and the peasants pillaged, burned and devastated everywhere.
All the buildings in the villages of Halancesti, Herlesti, Holcisteni and Nicoluseni are in ruins.

The most serious fight occurred near Piatra, a town about sixty miles southwest of Jassy. Several thousand peasants marched against this town, where an entire regiment of infantry was stationed. The soldiers charged the peasants with fixed bayonets. The peasants replied with rifle and revolver fire, and the troops began shooting back. The fighting lasted over an hour before the rioters retreated. They had 42 men killed, 67 wounded, and 250 of their number were carried off prisoners. The troops had eight men killed and 27 wounded.
The estimate of 10,000 Jews without homes is considered here to be conservative. Most of these fugitives saved absolutely nothing, escaping with their lives.

FIRE AT EAST GRAND FORKS.

Secondary Blaze Does Much Damage to Property.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 23.—Fire of an incendiary origin destroyed the building containing the East Grand Forks city hall, the fire hall and the city electric light plant. The total loss is about $50,000, with insurance of $12,400. There was a scarcity of water in the vicinity of the city hall, and the fire was beyond control when the Grand Forks department was summoned.

The police of East Grand Forks and Grand Forks have taken up the search for the firebug. A person known by the nickname of "Frenchy" is suspected and is under surveillance. He was ordered several months ago to leave Grand Forks by Chief Lowe after being suspected of setting fire to a store and other smaller buildings. A week ago he returned and has been making his home in East Grand Forks.

The fire started in the hayloft of the fire department quarters.

NOW A RAVING MANIAC.

Negro Who Tried to Save McKinley's Life Is Insane.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 23.— James Parker, colored, who claims to have attempted to save the life of President McKinley by striking the arm of Czolgosz as the latter fired the fatal shot at the president, is in jail here a raving maniac.

Parker was taken in charge by the police and will be committed to an asylum.

HEAVY LOSS FROM FIRE.

Lumber Yard and Dwellings at Pine Bluff, Ark., Burned.

Pine Bluff, Ark., March 23.—Fire swept over the entire plant of the Bluff City Lumber company and destroyed several small dwellings owned by the company. The loss is estimated at from $700,000 to $750,000.

When the fire started in the boiler-room of the lumber plant the entire fire department responded, but it was soon apparent that the water pressure was not sufficient to subdue the flames.
The fire spread rapidly and several cottages in the immediate vicinity of the plant were razed to the ground by the use of dynamite.

The Bluff City Lumber company is one of the largest concerns in Pine Bluff and large quantities of lumber was stacked in the yards. This was destroyed or badly damaged.

Warden and Police Chief Shot.

Astrakhan, Russia, March 23.—Prison Warden Przybylovsky was shot dead in the bazar here. A captain of police hurried to the scene to investigate the murder and was also shot dead. No arrests have been made.

Police Captain Killed.

Kutins, Russia, March 23.—A police captain named Kipandzo was shot dead in the street here.

Just received a fine line of wines and liquors at "The Nugget."

ANIMAL SAGACITY.

The Instinct That Leads the Ostrich to Protect Its Eggs.

The nature students—everybody is a nature student nowadays—were trying to outdo one another.

"Eagles when the sun is overhot shade their young with outspread wings," said the first. "On August afternoons I have seen a mother eagle stand patiently two full hours, her left wing spread like an umbrella, while in its cool shade her nestlings slept."

"Squirrels," said the second, "can tell whether a nut is good or bad without opening it. A chestnut, a walnut, a shellbark, they lift it in their little paws, hold it to their faces a moment, then if it is bad cast it aside. How do they tell? By the weight, by the sound? I incline to think they do it by the smell."

"Ostriches never sit," said the third. "They lay their eggs on the pale Saharan sands, and the sun does the rest. But before the ostriches depart from their eggs they place on the top of each a pinch of sand, for they know that the germ will mount to the top and that the sun's heat would kill the germ were it not protected."

"A trained elephant," said the fourth student, "danced very badly at a matinee performance and was accordingly beaten cruelly by its master. That night, hearing a shuffling noise outside, the master crept forth, and there in the moonlight he found the elephant carefully practicing its dance steps."

CARE OF CHAMELEONS.

How These Little Creatures Can Be Kept Alive For Years.

Chameleons can be kept alive for years by making a frame to fit over a plant in a flowerpot and covering it with mosquito netting, which must be long enough to tie with a string about the pot. Keep the pot in the sunniest window and water the plant every day through the netting. You will be surprised to see how eagerly the little creatures will drink the running water after they get over their fear. Set a wire fly trap for flies, which you can liberate under the netting. The chameleons will not be backward about helping themselves.

In winter they do not require much food, but will relish a meal worm occasionally on sunny days. Meal worms can sometimes be got at the grain stores for the asking or can be purchased at the bird stores, or small spiders can be found in cracks and crannies asleep for the winter. They may be frozen stiff if found out of doors, but they revive in a warm room.

At Opera House Monday, April 1st

Chameleons enjoy a place to sleep in nights and winters. Take a piece of red flannel four inches wide and eight inches long; roll it over a stick as large round as your finger and sew it while on the stick so that it will not come unwound; then slip off and run a wire through it long enough to suspend it from one of the branches on the plant. The chameleon will crawl into this cozy bed and go to sleep.—St. Nicholas.

The Lady of the Lake.

"In the Days of Scott" there are two anecdotes about Sir Walter Scott's children in connection with his poem, "The Lady of the Lake."

One day his daughter was met by James Ballantyne, the publisher, in her father's library and asked what she thought of the poem. She replied that she had not read it and added:

"Papa says there is nothing so bad for young people as reading bad poetry."

Scott's son Walter returned from school one day with evidences of having been engaged in a fight. His father asked him what he had been fighting about. He replied that he had been called a "lassie" and had resented it.

A little questioning showed that young Walter's schoolfellows had nicknamed him "The Lady of the Lake," which name the boy did not understand except as a reproach to his manliness.

PEERS FLEE TO AFRICA.

Rich Britons Prefer Wild Animals to Girls Who Would Wed Them.

All London is laughing at the decision of the new Marquis of Anglesey and Lord Compton, the heir of the Marquis of Northampton, to fly the country before the London season commences. These two young men, who will be enormously wealthy and who are the greatest matrimonial catches in England, prefer to brave lions and rhinoceros rather than be chased by designing dowagers with flocks of unmarried daughters.

No sooner had Lord Anglesey succeeded to the title held by his very eccentric cousin than he received showers of letters of invitations from old ladies whom he had never met. Young Lord Compton's coming of age last year was also remarkable for the fact that he was literally surrounded by bewitching damsels who wished to tell him "the story of their lives."

Both young men are good looking, modest and sportsmanlike. They intend to go out together to Nalrobl, east Africa, and do some big game shooting instead of attending dances every night in London. Lord Compton's father does not want his son to think of marriage until he is at least twenty-eight years of age. Lord Anglesey may possibly be "kept in reserve" for a royal or semiroyal princess.

TRAPPED IN SAFE.

Bookkeeper Almost Loses His Life Trying to Save Books From Fire.

Jeremiah Keane, bookkeeper, had a remarkable escape from death while shut up in a steel vault in the burning store of Hearn & Keane, at Danbury, Conn.

The young man is a son of one of the firm. He was trying to save the books, when some one pushed a big stove against the door of the vault. He faced death by suffocation, and his shouts and struggles were in vain.

At last, with almost superhuman strength, he moved the stove a few inches and forced his way out. But the thick smoke that filled the room choked him into insensibility, and he fell upon the floor.

A few minutes later a fireman stepped upon his prostrate body. He was dragged out into the air with the books in his arms.

GIRL CLIMBS A STEEPLE.

Churchwarden's Daughter Startles English Market Crowd.

An English girl, seventeen years old, recently accomplished the extraordinary feat of ascending a church spire 200 feet high in the teeth of a gale of wind.

Mr. Larkins, the steeplejack of Bow, had undertaken to ascend the spire of All Saints', Hereford, the highest in the west of England. Miss Elsie Helms of West Dene, Whitecross Road, Hereford, the daughter of one of the churchwardens, volunteered to accompany him.

The ascent was made by means of a steeplejack's cradle. In spite of the force of the wind and of the swaying of the cradle the girl, Mr. Larkins says, was remarkably cool all through the perilous ascent and descent. Needless to say, the spire had never been ascended before by any except male climbers.

It was market day, and a great crowd watched in thrilling suspense the ascent of the swaying cradle. Traffic was entirely blocked by the crowd, every member of which stood stock still until the girl had gained the summit, descended again and reached the ground safe and unharmed.

MRS. EDDY'S LONG LOST SON.

George W. Glover and His Suit Against Christian Science Leaders.

One of the most discussed personalities of the day is Mrs. Mary Baker Glover Eddy, founder of Christian Science, now eighty-six years of age. Her beliefs, writings, career and bodily health have been the subject of innumerable articles in magazines and the daily press, and but recently the public was surprised by the announcement that her only son, George W. Glover of Lead City, S. D., had begun suit for an accounting of the Christian Science leader's financial affairs on the ground that she was incompetent to manage them. Mr. Glover was joined in this suit by his daughter, Mary Baker Glover, and Mrs. Eddy's nephew, George W. Baker. Mr. Glover claims that his mother is so enfeebled in body and weakened in mind as to be unable to give the attention to her business affairs which they demand and that she is surrounded by those who prevent her from having natural and proper intercourse with her relatives. Mr. Glover has been engaged in mining and was on a trip east in she had no way to care for him he was given to the charge of another family at about four years of age. Mrs. Eddy wrote as follows of this incident:

"My dominant thought in marrying again was to get back my child, but after our marriage his stepfather was not willing he should have a home with me. A plot was consummated for keeping us apart. The family to whose care he was committed very soon removed to what was then regarded as the far west. Later a letter was read to my little son informing him that his mother was dead and buried. Without my knowledge a guardian was appointed for him, and I was then informed that my son was lost. Every means within my power was employed to find him, but without success. We never met again until he had reached the age of thirty-four, had a wife and two children and by a strange providence had learned that his mother still lived."

A BEAUTIFUL PRINCESS.

Marie of Roumania and Her Little Son, Prince Nicholas.

Princess Marie of Roumania is one of the most clever and beautiful princesses in Europe. She is a daughter of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha and niece of King Edward, married Prince Ferdinand von Hohenzollern, heir presumptive to the throne of Roumania, in 1893 and has four children.

GEORGE W. GLOVER.

this connection when he called on his mother at Concord, N. H. According to his statement, the visit lasted but three-quarters of an hour, and Mrs. Eddy did not ask him to spend the night, explaining that there were no accommodations in the house.

Mr. Glover's history is quite out of the ordinary. He is the son of Mrs. Eddy and her first husband, George Washington Glover, to whom she was married in 1843, when twenty-two years old. They went to live in Wilmington, S. C., but six months after their arrival Mr. Glover died of yellow fever, and the young widow returned to her father's home in New England, where her son was born. As two boys and two girls, the youngest being Prince Nicholas, who is shown with his mother in the picture.

Princess Marie has always been fond of outdoor sports and is still quite athletic. Several years ago when she assumed personal command of the third regiment of hussars on the plain of Crotoceni, near Bucharest, in Rou mania, she led them in a wild charge against a regiment of infantry during some cavalry evolutions, and the incident excited admiration for her in all the European capitals. The princess is noted for the richness of her costumes and her taste in personal adornment.

The Riddle.

His Daughter—Papa, did you know mamma long before you married her? Her Father—Just between you and me, my dear, I don't know her yet.—Chicago News.

A PRIVILEGE RESERVED.

Ceremonies Witnessed at a Jeweler's Ring Counter.

"I want a plain gold ring for a lady. Best you've got in the store."

"For this lady?"

"Sure! Who else would it be for? Pull off your glove, Katie, and let the gentleman measure your finger."

The girl withdrew her woollen glove and bashfully extended her small hand, red and toll worn, toward the clerk.

"There, that's about the size," said the jeweler to the girl.

"Do you wish him to put it on?"

"No—not yet," said the blushing girl.

"When he puts that ring on, it's on to stay."

Size, quality and price at last were settled satisfactorily, and the young man pulled from his pocket a shining coin.

"Here you are, gold for gold!" he exclaimed proudly. "Nothin' but gold 'll pay for that ring."

"Haven't you anything smaller?" asked the sordid clerk.

"Plenty, but nothin' good enough to pay for that ring."

"Bit of sentiment, eh?" queried an interested bystander.

"Oh, yes, sir," said the girl, with evident pride. "He's been saving that twenty dollar gold piece for nearly four months, waiting to buy this ring."

Women and Jewelry.

"Women know a great deal more about buying jewelry now than they knew twenty-five years ago," said a jeweler. "When I first started in the business a clerk with a persuasive tongue could talk a woman into buying most anything. It wasn't safe for her to step inside a shop unless she had a man along. Now the average woman knows more about jewels than the average man. Of course they can be fooled—anybody can—but as a rule she buys with a surprising knowledge of value, and her taste in the cutting and setting is excellent."—New York Post.

THE HORSELESS FARM

California Dunkard Elder Would Release the Equine.

ENGINE TO DO ALL HARD WORK

Proposes a Cable Device For Plowing and Cultivating—Application of the Old Grip Car Method to Agriculture on a Large Scale.

Elder J. S. Flory of the Dunkard sect, or German Baptist brethren, and sometimes called Bishop Flory, who lives with one of his sons in Los Angeles, has come forward with what he considers an ideal system of horseless farming.

"If the thing is any good," he said, "the public is welcome to it. It suggests the possibility of doing away entirely with horses thus emancipating brute creation from the slavery imposed upon them by their master, man."

Elder Flory's suggestion contemplates placing a traction engine, or truck, on each side of the plot of ground to be plowed, connected by an endless cable to which the plows may be attached, something after the manner in which the grip worked on the supplanted street car service, says the Los Angeles Times. The same engines that operate the cable will also propel the trucks forward for the next furrow and accomplish all the cultivation, thrashing and grinding of the crop and may be utilized for all kinds of operations on the farm, where power is required for pumping plants and many other purposes.

"This mode of farming," he said, "will in a special manner appeal to those engaging in the cultivation of sugar beets and gardening on a large scale. One great advantage, among many others, will be in saving the tramping of the ground by horses where crops are growing, thus assuring a larger yield."

It must be said that Elder Flory's proposition is not entirely new. The same plan is of almost medieval origin, and a generation ago was illustrated in the government reports of the department of agriculture, the main difference being that in these old illustrations stationary engines were shown, as the dreamers of that day had not yet scented the coming of the automobile.

"I believe the system practicable, and, though I have passed the milestone of threescore and ten, I expect to live to see it put into universal practice on level lands," said Elder Flory, but he is so hale, hearty and active that one readily feels that he may yet have many years to wait. Thirty years of his life have been spent as a farmer in Virginia, Iowa and Colorado, and he has been a resident of Los Angeles county since 1884. His inventive turn of mind found vent while he was a farmer in Colorado, during the great grasshopper plague. He invented a grasshopper exterminator, which received marked attention from the agricultural department and was illustrated in the reports sent out from Washington.

NEW BUFFET APARTMENTS.

Los Angeles "Touch the Button" Flat Idea Travels Eastward.

According to a Denver newspaper, Frank L. Birney of that city has brought some lots with the intention of erecting an apartment house containing thirty-four apartments of the buffet order. This style of house, common now in Los Angeles, is an innovation in Denver. The interior arrangements leave almost nothing for the occupant to do. Beds, tables, lounging seats, book cases, desks and even gas stoves will be so arranged in the walls that by merely pressing a button any one of these will appear as if by magic and disappear again at the will of the tenant.

The arrangement of the entrances also will be entirely new, solving the problem of deliveries. There will be an iron stairway up each side of the building connected with each apartment so that all deliveries can be made without using the main entrance.

An elevator will be installed, and in connection with each apartment there will be a storage room for the use of the tenant. The building, which will be constructed of white pressed brick, will be of the Flemish type of architecture and will consist of three stories and a basement. The latter will be furnished in the most improved style as a restaurant. Upward of $40,000 will be expended in following out the plans, and it is Mr. Birney's aim to make this novel apartment house an ornament to the city.

PUTER ON THE STAND.

Oregonian Testifies in the Binger Hermann Case.

Washington, March 21.—S. A. D. Puter, who gave his residence as the Multnomah county jail, Oregon, where he has served six years of a two-years' sentence for frauds, was a witness for the government in the Hermann trial here. Mr. Puter talked for half an hour and gave with startling directness the full details of the difficulties and cost which had attended his efforts to obtain patents to twelve homesteads in the Cascade forest reserve, now known as the "seven-eleven" frauds in Oregon.

He said he first "rounded up" ten persons and agreed to pay them $150 each to make entries to the claims and turn over the deeds to him. He then saw Dr. Loomis, the special agent of the land office, gave him $500 to make a favorable report on the claims and promised him a like amount when the patents should issue. He also endeavored to "fix things" with Ormsby, the state forester, by giving Ormsby's son $500.

After the Loomis report reached Washington, Puter learned that something was wrong, and as he had been here several times before and knew Mr. Hermann, he decided to come at once. Before leaving Oregon, he got a letter of introduction to Senator Mitchell from Attorney Mayes of Portland. Puter said he knew Mitchell, but asked Mayes to write a "strong" letter and indicate to the senator that Puter would pay him well to fix things up. He presented the letter to the senator and also called on Mr. Hermann. Hermann told him that his matters were being looked into, and indicated that things might be going along all right.

Puter said he had several more interviews with Mitchell and Hermann, but made no apparent progress until he gave Senator Mitchell $2,000.

Later Puter met Hermann on the street and Hermann assured him that his patents would be issued. He said he took the train for the West at once, and upon reaching Portland found the patents waiting for him. His total expense, Mr. Puter said, had been $7,000 or $8,000.

The Alexandria Post-News says the present legislature is not meeting the expectations of the public. Show us one that ever has.

The St. Cloud Journal-Press issues a handsome 24-page Easter edition, one that is a credit to the city in which the paper is published.

A news item says a law in Norway prohibits a person from spending more than ten cents in one tavern. This being the case tips in the taverns of that country must be unknown.

The anti-lobby bill has been signed by the governor of Missouri and it will become a law in 90 days. Under its provisions all lobbyists must register with the secretary of state upon their arrival at the capital city and state the purpose of their visit.

The really holdings of the mixed-blood members of the White Earth reservation are to be taxed and the red men will enjoy all the privileges of the white man, of which this is one. A list is now being made of those liable to taxation which will be much easier than the collection of the tax after it is levied.

The house of representatives by its vote is willing to pass an anti-pass law that will prohibit everyone except those holding legislative passes from using the same, while the senate is willing to prohibit the railroad companies from issuing passes to anyone and make the law effective at once. Has the senate been able to arrange matters so they can afford to pay their fare during the balance of the session?

FARGO officials are at work perfecting a plan which is likely to bring under the list of tax payers young men who are considered to have escaped their just proportion of certain parts of the taxes. A petition is to be presented to the council which will provide for the polling lists of the city to be examined and from them a list made of the unmarried men, who to a large extent have escaped general taxation for such property as they possess. The plan to be adopted will mean that the schools will get their proportion of the taxes paid by the young men who enjoy all privileges as to franchise and general municipal benefits the same as married men.

find it in the Rev. Laws, 1905, with more

Brainerd Barbers May Raise Price and Say They are Following Lead of Barbers in Other Cities

The Brainerd barbers held a meeting last night to consider the matter of advancing the price of haircuts from 25 cents to 35 cents. They are in this matter following the lead of their fellows in Minneapolis, where the increase goes into effect Monday. The barbers of that city give as their reason for the raise that in Chicago the price is 40 cents, while in Duluth, Superior, Sioux City, Omaha, Kansas City, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Seattle, Portland, Fargo and Grand Forks the charge is 35 cents.
The local barbers have not as yet fully decided whether or not to make the advance, but they will probably do so.

NEW STYLE CAR

It is understood that the Great Northern is among the Western roads which will adopt a new-style passenger car, to be used as a regulation sleeper at night and a parlor car during the day. The special feature in connection with these new coaches is that during the day all the berths are entirely removed, disappearing in the flooring of the car. By day the coach has the appearance of a standard parlor car, seated with easy chairs. In the evening the chairs disappear, the berths rise from the floor, and the coach is turned into a sleeper.

One great advantage connected with the use of this car is that a saving is effected in that the car is made to serve a double service. Both upper and lower berths are equipped with regulation spring beds, and there is an additional six inches space between the upper and lower berths.

The building of the Duluth extension of the Soo line is liable to be a record breaker in point of rapidity of construc-

very anxious to have the road completed

It is even said that Foley Bros., who have the contract for grading, will, if necessary, prosecute the work of construction both day and night in order to have the line completed before the movement of the fall crops begins.

The work of preparation for grading is being rushed with all possible haste.
Several carloads of supplies and equipment for construction work have ar-

been mustered into service for the haul-

LARGE FUNERAL THIS MORNING

Remains of Miss Muriel O'Brien
Laid to Rest in Evergreen
Cemetery Today

MANY FLORAL OFFERINGS

Funeral Mass was Sung by the Children's Choir—Sermon by Rev. Father O'Mahoney

The funeral of Miss Muriel O'Brien was held at St. Francis Catholic church at 9 o'clock this morning. The church was crowded to the doors with friends and school mates of the unfortunate girl who gathered to do tribute to the memory of her beautiful character. She was born in Brainerd 17 years ago and had lived here most of her short life and had endeared herself to all by her cheerfulness and sprightly ways.

The funeral mass was sung by the children's choir who deserve high praise for the beautiful manner in which the music was rendered. Rev. Father O'Mahoney delivered the funeral address in which he paid high tribute to the beauty of her character and the splendid example her life had set to her mates.
The floral tributes are said to have been the finest ever seen in the city, her tragic death having added to the sorrow and aroused the sympathy of all.
There was a very large attendance of the scholars and teachers, her class attending in a body. After the funeral the remains were followed to Evergreen cemetery by a large number of friends.

Her father, P. F. O'Brien, arrived yesterday morning from the west, whence he had been summoned by telegraph.

The kidneys are calling for help.
Use Doan's Kidney Pills.
Guaranteed by Brainerd testimony.

Mrs. J. A. Johnson, living at 611 10th St., S. Brainerd, Minn., says: "My husband's work brings a constant severe strain on the muscles of the back and it recently caused an attack of kidney trouble that became worse whenever he took cold. He suffered from backache and was lame and sore that it was hard to straighten up or ever to move about.
There was also an irregular action of the kidneys. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised he got a box at H. P.
Dunn & Co.'s and the treatment proved most beneficial, corrected the kidney trouble and removed the pain and lameness. I also used Doan's Kidney Pills myself, with the gratifying results.
They certainly act quickly and surely."

Fine Lecture

The Swedish Methodist church last evening was crowded to hear the lecture on "Some Very Odd People I Know," which was delivered by the Rev. Charles Fox Davis. Mr. Davis, as a prelude to the lecture, rendered a dramatic duet, song and reading, which was heartily enjoyed, and Miss Catharine Rounds was the accompanist. The "Odd People," with whom the lecturer dealt, consisted of the pessimist, the bore, the man without backbone, the growler, the man who never laughs, the stingy man, the man with a gloomy religion, the sensitive man, the tactless preacher, and the man who believes that the golden age lies in the past rather than now or in the future. It was a popular lecture bubbling over with humor, retort, irony, wit, paradoxes, sarcasm and pathos, and for one hour and a half the audience was interestingly entertained. The church for which the lecture was given netted a good sum for its treasury. The pastor, Rev. A. Nelson, requests THE DISPATCH, in behalf of himself and congregation to extend their thanks and appreciation to Rev. Mr. Davis for his kind assistance.

SECRET INDICTMENTS

SEVERAL OF THEM HAVE BEEN RETURNED BY GRAND JURY
AT SAN FRANCISCO.

MAY ISSUE A STATEMENT

ABRAHAM RUEF MAY DECIDE TO TAKE SOME STARTLING
CLOSURES.

San Francisco, March 23.—It was stated at the prosecuting attorney's office that Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railways company, would upon his arrival here from New York be given an opportunity to appear before the grand jury in connection with that body's investigation of the alleged bribery of the board of supervisors in the matter of an overhead trolley franchise granted the United railways last May.

From the same source it was also learned that a number of secret indictments, which have not even been trusted to the secret file for fear that their contents might leak out, are not all against one person but are said to contain the names of several.

To the Associated Press Abraham Ruef said that he is considering the proposition of a statement to the public and he declared that when he tells his story it will contain sensations equal to the disclosures made by the alleged confessions of the supervisors. He expressed the opinion that the investigation now going on was in furtherance of an organized attempt to seize the municipal government and asserted that it was "government by indictment" instead of government by indictment.

The sixty-five charges of bribery against Ruef have been assigned by Presiding Judge Coffey to Judge Dunne's department of the superior court. They will be placed on the calendar and arraignment set for some day early next week. To avoid possible conflict between the chief of police or sheriff and Elisor Biggy no bench warrants will be issued on these indictments.

New Prison for Ruef.

The former residence of Mayor Schmitz, in which he resided when elected and often entertained Ruef, and where the mayor and Ruef laid many of their political campaigns, may become Ruef's prison for some months. The present owner is attempting to rent it to Elisor Biggy as a place of detention for Ruef when he takes the latter away from the St. Francis hotel.

The true reason for the determination of the prosecution to take no immediate steps toward removing from office the supervisors has been disclosed. District Attorney Langdon states that in order to remove them it would be necessary to prove the charges against them. This would compel the prosecution to bring forward all its evidence and thereby disclose its entire hand before the trials of those who are or will be indicted.

Assistant District Attorney Heney declared that the mayor, having the appointive power, could fill the vacancies created by the removal of the supervisors with men on whom the investigators had no hold. To overcome this obstacle it would be necessary first to remove the mayor, and this, Heney admitted, the prosecution was in no position as yet to do.

TWO NEGROES QUESTIONED.

Interrogated About Alleged Confession of Colored Soldier.

Houston, Tex., March 23.—Lieutenant Chamberlain returned to headquarters in this city after spending Friday with Major Blockem at Galveston investigating the alleged confession of one D. O. Grey, with reference to the raid on the town of Brownsville by the negro soldiers stationed there last August. Lieutenant Chamberlain when questioned relative to the report that he had caused the arrest at Galveston of a negro named William Anderson, denied that anyone had been arrested at Galveston at the instance of army officers, but said that William Anderson, a former member of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, and his uncle, D. C. Grey, were among those interrogated by Major Blockem in the office of the chief of police.

Hottest Day in March.

Washington, March 23.—Friday was the hottest March day ever experienced in Washington. The temperature reached 90 degrees. The records of the weather bureau for the past thirty-seven years show that the nearest approach to this mark was on March 22, 1894, when the thermometer registered 82 degrees.

SPRING TRADE AT ITS HEIGHT.

Stimuli Furnished by Favorable Weather and Approach of Easter.

New York, March 23.—Bradstreet's review of trade says spring trade is at its height, and the turnover bids fair to exceed even last year's, the stimuli being furnished by more favorable weather, the approach of Easter and the visits of country merchants to the larger centers. Improvement is reflected all around, even in the Northwest, which now appears to be getting back to normal conditions, although collections are still backward in North Dakota. In fact, doubt as to the future is nowhere in evidence in the great producing sections of the country. At some points in the West sales of drygoods on spring account are fully 10 per cent above those of last year, while fall business thus far placed is also in excess of that booked at this time in 1906. Collections, while not good, tend to improve in parts of the country, the Southwest being conspicuous in this respect, owing to the fact that country merchants are discounting bills. While the car situation in the West has improved, conditions in the East are worse, but nevertheless a greater movement of cereals to market may now be expected. Manufacturing in general is active and some lines refuse to book any more orders for spring shipment. At the same time the situation is not without its cross currents, some of which probably arise from the lower prices recently witnessed in the stock market and difficulty in procuring money at reasonable rates.

LOCATED IN ENGLAND.

Kidnapped Delaware Boy Said to Be in Portsmouth.

Washington, March 23.—Third Assistant Secretary of State Wilson has received a cablegram from the consul at Portsmouth, Eng., saying the authorities there have a boy who answers the description of the kidnapped Marvin boy, for whom a general search is being made in this country. Mr. Wilson, acting on the president's instructions, forwarded the message to Governor Lea of Delaware. Mr. Wilson stated that this government stands ready to co-operate with the state authorities in every way possible in the efforts to ascertain information relating to the kidnapping.

PRIEST CAPTURES ROBBER.

Holds Escaped Convict Until Officers Arrive.

Green Bay, Wis., March 23.—While his housekeeper telephoned to the police, Rev. L. A. Ricklin, pastor of St. John's church, held Tommy Johnson, a convict who broke parole from the state reformatory Thursday night, for twenty minutes until the officers came. Johnson was caught by Father Ricklin in the act of robbing his home.

Disastrous Fire in Ohio.

Ironton, O., March 23.—One of the most disastrous fires in years visited Ironton, causing a loss of nearly $100,000 and leaving several prominent families homeless for the time being. The fire started in the plant of the Ironton Lumber company and flying sparks spread it to the residences.

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER.

Wisconsin Man Sentenced to State's Prison for Seven Years.

Black River Falls, Wis., March 23.—Never before in the history of this city has such an intense scene been enacted as was the close of the Montgomery uxoricide trial here. When the jury announced that they had agreed, and a verdict of "guilty of manslaughter in the second degree" was handed in, the prisoner, who had been exceedingly cheerful and jolly during the trial, was fairly stunned.

Recess was taken, after which the attorneys for the defense moved for a new trial, the state making no response to the motion, which was promptly denied by Judge O'Neill. The prisoner was then asked if he had anything to say in his own defense and he replied in a brief talk.

In a most dramatic manner, with hand raised to heaven he declared that he loved his wife; that he never was guilty of her death, and that they were sending an innocent man to prison.

An earnest appeal for clemency was made for him by Attorney Perry. The judge then called Montgomery to the bar, and with the tears filling his eyes he told him he had had as impartial a trial as a man could have. The judge said that he could only perform the duty imposed upon him by law. Then, with voice trembling with emotion, he imposed the extreme penalty of the law, seven years at hard labor at Waupun, one day each year to be spent in solitary confinement.

PASSES ON THE CASE

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT DISAPPROVES OF ACQUITTAL OF CAPTAIN KOEHLER.

Washington, March 23.—President Roosevelt has announced his disapproval of the findings of acquittal in the case of Captain Lewis M. Koehler, Fourth cavalry, U. S. A., cavalry commander at Jolo, Philippine Islands. Captain Koehler was charged with using disrespectful language in an appeal from the action of General Wood, the division commander, who reprimanded Captain Koehler for making charges against Major Scott, commanding officer at the Jolo military post and civil governor of Jolo, and was charged with conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman in making unfounded and malicious statements regarding his commanding officer and with insubordination. The first courtmartial sentenced him to be reprimanded and the second courtmartial, on which the president's action was based, acquitted him. The president's order follows:

"The proceedings, findings and acquittal in the case of Captain Lewis Koehler, Fourth cavalry, U. S. Army, are disapproved. I entirely concur in all that the secretary of war says of Captain Koehler, and of General Wood and of the poor showing made by the court which last passed on the case."

Secretary Taft in his letter says: "Captain Koehler is an officer with an excellent record for courageous service in the field and for attention to duty generally. He distinguished himself at the battle of Mount Dajo. Captain Koehler made himself very annoying to Major Scott by constant insistence that Major Scott should be in his office at certain times and should discharge his duties as military post commander with the same degree of promptness that he would have done had he not the additional duties of civil governor. The friction between the two officers became so great that Captain Koehler filed charges against Major Scott."

Filed Charges Against Koehler.

Major Scott later filed charges against Captain Koehler. A courtmartial found Captain Koehler guilty of preferring captious and unnecessary charges against his commanding officer and in reprimanding him under the sentence of the courtmartial, General Wood declared that Captain Koehler's conception of the standard of conduct and uprightness as they exist in the army "were distorted to a degree not found in the just and fair minded; and that he should cultivate those habits of true soldierly subordination which the evidence in the case showed him to lack."

Captain Koehler appealed, though the law does not specifically provide for such a remedy, to the secretary of war, alleging he was practically denied counsel; that the department commander was the accuser or prosecutor and that the court erred in overruling the plea in bar of trial based on that fact; that the reprimand was harsh and excessive and that an application for a court of inquiry on the charges made again to Major Scott were denied, and characterizing the department commander's acts as unfair, unjust and illegal.

General Wood called the attention of the war department to the appeal and submitted the question of disciplinary proceedings. A courtmartial was then applied, which acquitted Captain Koehler.

Continuing, Secretary Taft's letter said: "I have no hesitation in saying after a full consideration of the matter that the finding of the first courtmartial that Captain Koehler was guilty of filing captious and unnecessary charges against his commanding officer was fully sustained. Considering the evidence of the first courtmartial, I think the language of the reprimand was sufficiently within the finding on the evidence."

ALTER CONSTITUTION

HOUSE BILL PROVIDES FOR A STATE CONVENTION FOR THAT PURPOSE.

CHANGE IN ELECTION OF STATE
SENATORS PROPOSED IN ANOTHER BILL.

St. Paul, March 23.—A constitutional convention to formulate a new state constitution or amendments to the present constitution is provided for in a bill introduced in the house by W. L. Case of Cloquet. The bill provides that at the general election in 1908 there shall be elected a number of delegates equal to the number of senators and representatives and these shall constitute the convention. They shall report amendments or a new constitution and the next legislature shall provide for the submission of these propositions to the people in 1910.

A bill extending the operations of the fellow servant law, now enforced only against the railroads of the state, applicable to electric railways, public works and a large number of private operations, was introduced in the house by W. I. Nolan of Minneapolis.

The bill to appropriate $225,000 for the state farm at St. Anthony Park, introduced in the house by Alvin Rowe of St. Paul, was reported for passage by the committee on university. Among the provisions of the bill is one for $85,000 for the purchase of additional land for the farm.

Two constitutional amendments affecting the apportionment of representation in the legislature were proposed in bills introduced in the house by F. T. White of Elk River, chairman of the house reapportionment committee.

To Change Election of Senators.

The first amendment would do away with the present system of electing all the senators in one year. Under the amendment they would all be elected in 1910, as the present constitution provides, but those in the even numbered districts would be elected for four years and those in the odd numbered districts for six years, and after the expiration of those terms they would be elected for four-year terms.

The other amendment provides that after each state census the legislature may, and after each federal census the legislature shall, reapportion the congressional, judicial and legislative districts. At present the legislature has power to make a reapportionment after each census, but is not compelled to do so.

In spite of protests against what the opponents called a policy of peddling out appropriations to this and that town as premiums, and the charge of trading votes for its passage, the county agricultural school bill, providing special appropriations, was marked for passage in the house and the question was threshed out under a motion to refer the bill to the committee on agriculture and the motion was lost by a vote of 42 to 65.

The bill provides for appropriations of $20,000 each for schools at the following places: Marshall, Lyon county; Slayton, Murray county; Madison, Lac qui Parle county; Morris, Stevens county; Willmar, Kandiyohi county; Breckenridge, Wilkin county; Austin, Mower county, and Wadena, Wadena county.

Agricultural High Schools.

A bill providing for establishing six district agricultural high schools was introduced by Senator A. D. Stephens of Crookston. The bill divides the state into nine districts and provides for the establishment of an agricultural high school of a secondary grade and a branch experiment station in six of the districts. The institutions are to be managed by the regents of the state university as a part of the state agricultural college and experiment station, together with the branch station at Grand Rapids, and the agricultural school and station at Crookston. An agricultural school is also established at the Grand Rapids branch station.

The report of the senate railroad committee recommending for passage Senator Johnston's bill, S. F. 585, relating to the duties of railroads transporting live stock, was withheld by the committee on the information that the South St. Paul live stock interests wished to be heard on the question. The matter was taken up again and after a hearing the committee decided to report the bill for passage with a slight amendment. The bill as drafted requires railroads to designate one day each week as a stock shipping day, and the amendment will provide that they shall designate at least one day a week for that purpose.

S. L. Rogers, a banker from Windom, proved an interesting witness before the joint committee investigating the coal and lumber industries. Mr. Rogers was formerly in the lumber business in Windom when there were two other lumber dealers. He said that the retailers there used to divide the business of the town between themselves, but he insisted that the high price was due to combinations among the wholesale dealers. He did not know anything about this combination and admitted that the present high prices might be due in a measure to natural causes.

He said that the dealers drew names from a hat to determine the customers each should have for each month.

His Clever Ally

By W. CRAWFORD SHERLOCK.

Copyright, 1907, by Mary McKeon.

"Now, Tip, something must be done, but how I'm going to do it is more than I know."

Jim Granville stretched his great length on the grass beneath an old oak tree and addressed his fox terrier, who surveyed his master with evident interest and understanding. There was a frown on the broad forehead of the young man and a troubled look in his big brown eyes. Tip sat on his haunches, wagging his diminutive stump of a tail vigorously, one eye fixed intently on his master's face, while with the other he watched the movements of a squirrel on an overhanging branch.

"I'm in love, Tip," continued Granville, flicking the ashes from his cigar with an impatient gesture. "You know what that means, old fellow, since you've been paying your addresses to that little spaniel of Miss Brown's. Yet you can't understand why I don't tell the girl so and settle the whole matter, do you? Tip, canine affairs are different from human affairs. Men have responsibilities, and dogs don't. That's the whole difference in a nutshell."

Tip gave a short bark, as if he fully comprehended the distinction, and Granville went on: "I have a pretty good income, Tip, but it is not big enough to support two establishments. If I get married, my mother would have to live with us, and you know from your own experiences that she is a woman of decided convictions."

Tip shuddered at the remembrance of a whipping he had received for the slight offense of chewing up one of Mrs. Granville's gloves in a moment of absentmindedness and then hung his head.

"Well, Miss Brown also has decided views on certain questions of life, and she and my mother disagree upon almost every subject. The natural result of bringing such opposite natures together and compelling them to live beneath the same roof would be trouble, Tip, serious trouble too. I would have to side with my wife against my mother or I would have to side with my mother against my wife. In either case my position would be decidedly unpleasant. I don't expect you to fully understand this, old fellow. You were separated from your mother when you were too young to comprehend the meaning of filial affection. But human beings are quite different and have a certain duty to perform in looking after their maternal relations. Now, these are the facts in the case, Tip, and something must be done, but I don't know what it is to be."

The squirrel had disappeared from view, and Tip fixed his undivided attention upon his master, evidently meditating deeply over the perplexing problem. The stumpy tail ceased its pendulum-like motions, and his sharp ears were pricked up in an attitude of earnest attention.

"This crisis has come upon us suddenly, my boy," pursued Granville after a few moments of silence. "Things were running along all right, and there was no necessity for immediate action until this big fellow from California—Wentworth's his name—came upon the scene. He's been showing Miss Brown the most decided attention. Took her out three times last week in his auto and twice to the theater. In fact, every time I went there she was out with this confounded Wentworth, and I haven't had a chance to say a word to her since he came."

The terrier whined sympathetically, and his master continued:

"He's twice as old as she is, Tip, but that doesn't make any difference in these days, when men of seventy marry women of twenty. There ought to be a law passed that would prevent people from marrying when there is more than five years difference in their ages, and if I ever go to congress I'll introduce such a measure. That won't help me now, though, and if I don't make a move he'll win out and leave me at the post. There you are, Tip, I've unburied my secret soul to you, the only friend in whom I can confide, and I look to you to straighten this tangle out for me."

If the fly that hovered about Tip's head had been Wentworth, Granville's anxiety would have been at an end. After making sure that his winged tormentor would worry him no more Tip glanced around and espied the squirrel several rods away, engaged in making his morning meal from some crumbs that had been left in the woods. Forgetting his master's troubles, Tip dashed off in pursuit, leaving Granville to solve the question that so greatly perplexed him. The young man, left to his own devices, lighted a fresh cigar and began a mental calculation as to the length of time that must elapse before he could hope for sufficient income wherewith to maintain his mother and wife in separate homes, provided, of course, that Wentworth did not succeed in carrying off Miss Brown before his eyes.

The calculation was interrupted by a series of ear splitting yelps, and Granville, fearing his pet had come to grief, arose and hurried down the path along which Tip had disappeared. As he reached a clearing a hundred yards or so away he stopped short, his eyes resting upon a curious scene.

In the center of the clearing stood Wentworth and Mrs. Granville. The former had one arm around the latter's waist, while, with his walking stick in his disengaged hand, he was vigorously parrying the furious rushes of the enraged Tip.

"I'm so glad you've come, Jim," cried Mrs. Granville as her son drew near. "You are just in time."

"It looks as if I'm around at the wrong time," grimly returned the young man as he proceeded to calm the excited Tip. "I don't quite understand what it all means. I didn't know you knew Mr. Wentworth."

"Not know Tom Wentworth!" exclaimed Mrs. Granville in surprise. "Why, I've known him ever since I was a child. He's Catherine Brown's uncle, you know, and while he was looking up his niece he found me out, and we've renewed our old friendship. Tom tells me—a pretty flush had crept into Mrs. Granville's cheeks, and his forty-five years of life seemed to dwindle perceptibly—that he has cared for me ever since he has known me, and he has persuaded me to go back to California with him if you have no objections, Jim. What do you say?"

"I won't stand in the way of your happiness, mother," declared Granville with an emphasis that Mrs. Granville did not understand until Wentworth enlightened her. "I knew Jim would be all right," observed the big Californian jovially. "He's been making some plans for himself, and I think we'd better make a double wedding of it."

"You're a clever ally, Tip, even if you're only a dog," remarked Granville as he walked toward Miss Brown's home. "That wild bolt of yours brought about a solution of the whole matter."

Marsh Cup Water Plant.

The plant that I found in the Hudson bay region which is most worthy of notice grows in the mossy muskegs, in places where there is little or no grass. It is remarkable for two reasons—the beauty of its flower and its water containing properties. The leaves, which grow flat upon the ground, are broad and green. The bell of the flower seems adapted as a natural reservoir for water, of which, from a large one, there can easily be obtained as much as an Egyptian coffee cup will hold. But the beauty of it was that in the early autumn, when the nights were frosty, but the heat still excessive by day, the water it contained was always keed, for these charming flower bells are evidently constructed to resist frost, and as they close in toward the top they protect from the rays of the sun the lump of clear ice formed within the calyx at night. The result of this was that often when toiling along at midday, hot and weary, through a stagnant swamp all I had to do to slake my thirst was to pluck a few of these marvellous flowers to obtain so many small cups full of delicious water, each with a little lump of ice floating on the top.—Blackwood's Magazine.

What Boys Learned 300 Years Ago.

Schoolboys in old England took to Latin and Greek at an early age. At St. Saviour's Grammar school, Southwark, in 1611 a pupil of seven years and three months was admitted as an ordinary occurrence, who signed his form of admission, stating himself to be "reading and learning in the Accidence and entering into Propria quae Maribus, etc., and also Tully his second epistle, among those gathered by Stermus, and Corderius' dialogues, etc." The hours of study were long too. An old record says that from March till September "the child is to come at 6 in the morning and be at school till 11. Again at 1 and tarry till 6. The rest of the year he is to be in the morning at 7 and leave at 5 in the afternoon. The master will not give leave to play but once a week." The master was to be "skilled in the Latin and able to teach grammar, oratory, poetry and Greek, as also the principles of Hebrew. He is to be of a wise, sociable and loving disposition. Not hasty or furious, nor of ill example. He shall discern the nature of every child, if such may be discerned."

What He Made.

Towne—Well, he's a tailor, you know. He's not used to polite society. It's only natural to expect a break.

Brown—Yes, but he made another breach of good manners shortly after that—

Towne—Ah, a pair of breeches! That's still more natural for a tailor.—Catholic Standard and Times.

A SOCIETY LEPER

Awful Fate of a Leading Member of New York's Four Hundred.

MILLIONS CAN'T SAVE HIM.

He Is Dying of Leprosy in a Glass Room in His Palace in Gotham. Must Never Kiss His Wife or Children Again.

Wealth, of course, does not necessarily bring happiness or health. It does not even safeguard its possessor from the most shocking misfortunes known to man. In fact, there is abundant evidence that the families of the very rich are frequently the unhappy victims of their own wealth. Misfortune, misery and broken health follow the multimillionaires into their Fifth avenue houses in New York and into their Newport homes.

The most wretched member of New York's Four Hundred is slowly dying of leprosy, the most horrible of all diseases, and yet his millions, his social connections, his influential friends, are powerless to save him. There is perhaps no more impressive picture of the futility of hoarded millions than the spectacle of this fashionable millionaire leper. With money enough to buy everything that money can buy, he would joyfully exchange places with the poorest tenement house lodger.

This unfortunate, a patient of Dr. Albert S. Ashmead of New York, lives a prisoner in his home. Like Mr. Brinsgale, one of the richest men in Mexico, who is also a leper, he must forever shut himself off from the world. His great drawing room at the rear of his house is cut in two by a glass wall. On one side of this his family may come and look at him; may sit evenings and cheer him as he gazes wistfully through the glass wall. His children may kiss him good night with lips separated from his by a glass pane, but no human being may enter this millionaire leper's glass prison.

He must always wear rubber gloves, must touch nothing. He must never kiss his wife or children; must not even touch their hands. He cannot have his clothes washed, for nobody will wash them. Every time he changes his soiled linen it is burned. Every book, paper, letter he reads must be burned too. Nothing must ever come out of his glass prison except the dishes, and these the leper boils and disinfects with his rubber-gloved hands before they are set out for the butler to take back to the kitchen.

Day after day the disease slowly progresses. How long he will live he does not know. Exactly what turn or twist the disease will make from month to month and year to year no doctor can foretell. The only certainty is death, for science knows no cure. There is no hope or comfort for him in any direction, for according to Dr. Morris, the leprosy expert, it is hereditary and usually destroys the family in which it runs after some three or four generations. As he thinks hour after hour of the slowly creeping disease and the possible future misery of those who are dear to him, he has the one comfort that his wealth has spared him from being sent to one of the leper colonies.

A recent visitor to the leper colony of the Hawaiian Islands describes the lepers in the leper houses. "Some are covered with boils and have patches of ulcers from the soles of their feet to the crowns of their heads. Others are seen down on their backs unable to rise or move, calling on death to relieve their miseries. The hospitals are lawful posthouses. On the floors are lepers with their limbs rotted away, a mass of dead putrefaction. Some lift their worn and fleshless hands above their sightless eyes and beg for help that never comes until the bark touches the shores of that shadowy river from whose bourn no traveler returns.

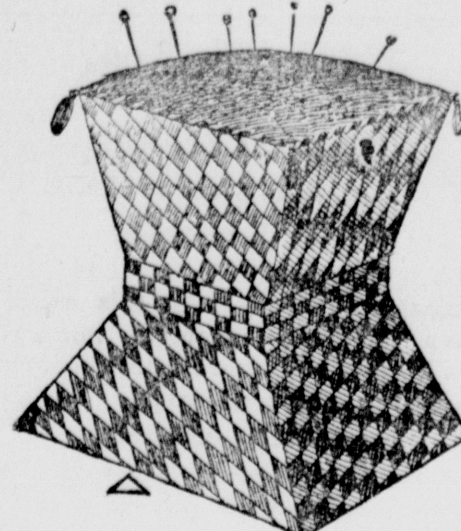

"Others, with running sores and lifeless mouths, groan out their distress until they can groan no more. Others, with tongueless throats, are past all articulation, disfigured, voiceless, bachelors of disease, whose eyeless sockets and fingerless palms cry out with mute appeal. Some are so decayed, their nervous systems so dead, that all sensation of pain and power of suffering has died, and to them death is a painless one."—New York American.

FOR SWEET CHARITY.

How to Furnish a Pincushion Stall at a Bazaar.

It is almost time for the annual breaking out of the bazaar epidemic, which attacks all communities, whether in town or country, in the fall. Lots of women dread these visitations not only on account of the trouble they entail, but from the fear of presiding over a "stall" that is not (to use a commercial term) a "good seller." All doubt on this score may be set at rest if a pincushion stall be selected. It may be safely looked upon as a "draw." The stock in trade is neither expensive nor troublesome to provide, and any surplus there may be need never remain long on hand, for a pincushion can claim to rank as a necessary of life.

The object with bazaar stock is first to be equipped with a sufficient supply of novelties and even oddities to make the stall striking and attractive and next to place one's wares in a good marketable position. The following pincushion suggestions may certainly be termed novelties in their line:

It is the fashion now to have monster pincushions that reach from side to side of the dressing table and hold not only the supply of ordinary pins, but the hundred and one hatpins, lace pins, safety pins, etc., which are in this manner best marshaled for a choice. The cushion is bolster shaped and rests on a semicircular wooden support. The ends are gathered into the round of the bolster and finished off with ribbon streamers, each terminating in a colored glass bead. This idea admits of many variations.

Very quaint and unusual is the Dutch pincushion, copied exactly from one used in the land of dikes and windmills. This pretty article stands about six inches high, although it may be made of any size. The framework is formed of eight pieces of cardboard, covered with silk and neatly sewed together in hourglass shape. Another section of silk covered cardboard is sewed at the bottom, and the case is filled with bran or cotton batting tightly packed. A bran stuffed cushion is deftly fitted into the top, and the whole is finished down the seams with fine cord. A waistband, as it were, is put around the center of the cushion. Old fashioned blue and white checkered silk is the quaintest material to use, with the top cushion of a harmonizing blue velvet.

Hint to the Waist Maker.

The shirt waist maker who is working at home must take care this season to get a good pattern. Very fine patterns are offered for sale, and the woman who wants to make her own waist would do well to purchase a pattern that fits her.

After obtaining the pattern it is a good thing to cut out a muslin waist. This one can be sure that the pattern fits. Doubtless a few small alterations must be made in it. Then comes the critical part—the adapting of the pattern to the modes of the season.

While waists are still upon the blouse order, it is noticeable that they fit more and more snugly and that there is an absence of the big bag which once hung boldly down so as to cover the belt line. All belt lines are visible now, and handsome belts are worn with all waists.

The home waist maker should not make the mistake of having her waist too loose. This is the almost invariable fault of the amateur. And the result is anything but graceful. The new waists are long in the waist line. They are cut in long, graceful curves. But, on the other hand, they fit snugly. One must experiment until one succeeds.

Shoe Bag That Is Practical.

A practical shoe bag is made in the following simple way: Cut a strip of heavy cretonne or denim twenty-eight inches long by fifteen inches wide. At each end cut a strip the same length, but only twelve inches wide, having first bound one of the long sides with colored tape.

Bind the other edges in with those of the longer piece, except at the top, using the same tape. Divide the upper and shorter strip into pockets the right size for shoes, using tape to mark them, and stitch on the sewing machine. This may have a short flap at the top to quite cover the shoes from dust. This bag, when fastened to the inner side of the closet door, is quite out of the way and at the same time easily within reach. Under this large bag might hang a small one made in the same fashion, in which to keep the boxes of shoe paste, clothes for cleaning and brushes for polishing.

The Joys of Relic Hunting.
Quite apart from the beauty and intrinsic worth of such things, it is astonishing on looking back on one's experiences of collecting to realize how much pleasure one has got out of even a dilettante quest of antiques. The exhilarating joy of this treasure hunt, the finding of the treasure, the bargaining for it and the final bearing of it home in triumph, unwrapping it and discussing its beauties and merits, are things which add zest to life. And, as the taste for beautiful old things is more or less an acquired one and can be cultivated, this is a joy in which most people who are fortunate enough to have a little spare cash and a little spare time can share.—London Tatler

The Joy of Owning Land.
There is a distinct joy in owning land, unlike that which you have in money, in houses, in books, pictures or anything else which men have devised. Personal property brings you into society with men. But land is a part of God's estate in the globe, and when a parcel of ground is deeded to you and you walk over it and call it your own it seems as if you had come into partnership with the original Proprietor of the earth.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Cause of His Joy.
"What are you looking so happy over, old man?"

"Great Scott! I congratulate you!"
"Don't congratulate me. Go and congratulate Evans. He's the lucky man. I never did like him."—Philadelphia Enquirer.

They Stand Alone.

Standing out in bold relief, all alone, and as a conspicuous example of open, frank and honest dealing with the sick and afflicted, are Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, over-worked, debilitated, nervous, "run-down," pain-racked women, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous remedy for weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness, all catarrhal affections whether of the stomach, bowels, kidneys, bladder, nasal passages, throat, bronchia, or other mucous passages, also as an effective remedy for all diseases arising from thin, watery or impure blood, as scrofulous and skin affections.

Each bottle of the above medicines bears upon its wrapper a badge of honesty in the full list of ingredients composing it—printed in plain English. This frank and open publicity places these medicines in a class all by themselves, and is the best guaranty of their merits. They cannot be classed as patent nor secret medicines for they are neither—being of known composition.

Dr. Pierce feels that he can afford to take the afflicted into his full confidence and lay all the ingredients of his medicines freely before them because these ingredients are such as are endorsed and most strongly praised by scores of the most eminent medical writers as cures for the diseases for which these medicines are recommended. Therefore, the afflicted do not have to rely alone upon Dr. Pierce's recommendation as to the curative value of his medicines for certain easily recognized diseases.

A glance at the printed formula on each bottle will show that no alcohol and no harmful or habit-forming drugs enter into Dr. Pierce's medicines, they being wholly compounded of glyceric extracts of the roots of native, American forest plants. These are best and safest for the cure of most lingering, chronic diseases. Dr. R. V. Pierce can be consulted free, by addressing him at Buffalo, N. Y., and all communications are regarded as sacredly confidential.

It is as easy to be well as ill—and much more comfortable. Constipation is the cause of many forms of illness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, two a mild cathartic. All dealers in medicines sell them.

Spring Dressmaking

Spring dressmaking ought to be a comparatively easy task this season, when the most expensive imported gowns are loaded down with trimmings made of their own materials.

TUCKS, FOLDS AND BRAIDS.

Tuckings of all sorts, bias folds, and narrow milliners folds put on in fancy patterns like braids, as well as fancy braids in an endless variety of colors and combinations are some of the many modish decorations that are within the province of the home dressmaker.

VERY TRIM LINES.

Fashion demands that the lines of a

Linings are more often selected to contrast than to match the dress material and white and figured silks make some of the smartest linings in costumes of dark thin materials.

NEW HATS.

Mushroom shapes are very much to the fore. Smooth straws chips and leghorns are most fashionable. Floral trimmings and bows of ribbon and velvet constitute the garniture of some of the smartest headwear. Large made are used on tailored hats as well as other forms of fancy feathers.

gown, especially the waist lines, must be kept trim and unwrinkled and the collar shapely. If these details are neglected the prettiest dress or waist will lose its style. Everyone by this time knows and uses the dainty Triune collar supporters, with their pretty silk coverings, and long looped form that makes them keep in shape and prevents their poking into the neck.

BELT AND GIRDLE STIFFENERS

This year one can get for belts and girdles these same stiffeners in 3 inch or 5 inch lengths, and nothing nicer or more easily attached could be imagined. The wise woman takes advantage of every small convenience that will help her in her work, for she realizes that she can accomplish enough more to overbalance the difference in cost.

SILK TRIMMINGS

Bands and folds of taffeta make some of the most effective trimmings and match either the color of the gown material or one of its lines, if a striped or cross-barred pattern, as many of the new materials are. Three piece suits are the fashionable fad and are not necessarily very expensive.

A very pretty new suit at one of the best shops here was of cotton voile, a white ground with a dark blue hair line. Car Laughter?
What was the origin of the phrase "Enough to make a cat laugh?" Dr. Murray's Dictionary notices only "Enough to make a cat speak," which is explained as signifying something extraordinary, especially something very good to drink. "Old liquor able to make a cat speak" is quoted from an early eighteenth century source, and therewith Stephano's remark to Calliban is compared, "Open your mouth; here is that which will give language to you, cat." Miss Squeers' maidservant said that only to see Miss Squeers' friend, Miss Price, toss her head was "enough to make a timent talk French grammar." But even that is not exactly laughing. How is anything to do with the mythical Cheshire animal?—London Chronicle.

Women and Jewelry.

"Women know a great deal more about buying jewelry now than they knew twenty-five years ago," said a jeweler. "When I first started in the business a clerk with a persuasive tongue could talk a woman into buying most anything. It wasn't safe for her to step inside a shop unless she had a man along. Now the average woman knows more about jewels than the average man. Of course they can be fooled—anybody can—but an expert—but as a rule she buys with a surprising knowledge of value, and her taste in the cutting and setting is excellent."—New York Post.

KILLED BY GAMBLER

RAID ON A FORT WORTH RESORT FOLLOWED BY THE MURDER OF TWO MEN.

COUNTY ATTORNEY IS SLAIN

MEMBER OF RAIDING PARTY ALSO IS KILLED AND MURDERER IS WOUNDED.

Fort Worth, Tex., March 23.—Following a raid on an alleged gambling house, County Attorney Jeff D. McLean was shot and killed and Hamill P. Scott, a member of the raiding party, was fatally wounded by William Thompson, proprietor of the resort. Half an hour later Thompson was surrounded in a lumber yard within 100 yards of where Scott was shot down, and captured after a desperate fight in which Thompson received bullet wounds that will probably cause his death within a few hours.

The series of tragedies was of the most sensational and spectacular character, and were witnessed by hundreds of men and women, including many members of the state legislature here in attendance on a stock show. The house raided is located on Main street near the corner of Sixth, in the heart of the retail district.

County Attorney McLean, heading a party of deputies, forced an entrance into the place, placed a number of men under arrest, and loaded a furniture van with tables and other paraphernalia. The wagon with the confiscated furniture had just moved off when Thompson approached McLean, who was standing on the sidewalk, and when within a few feet of the official, fired one shot, the bullet striking McLean in the throat, breaking his neck and causing almost instant death. As McLean fell, Thompson turned and ran west on Sixth street, with Scott in pursuit.

Dodging behind a billboard, Thompson ambushed Scott, shooting the deputy three times in the body. When Scott fell Thompson stopped only long enough to discard his empty pistol for that carried by the dying deputy and then renewed his flight.

By this time a score of policemen and deputy sheriffs, followed by hundreds of excited men and boys, were in pursuit of Thompson, who found temporary refuge in a lumber shed just across the street from the Tonnage hotel, the most fashionable hostelry in the city. Here he was located by Patrolmen Bell and Lloyd.

Ready to Fight to the Death.

Thompson, by this time thoroughly desperate and with the cry of "lynch him" ringing in his ears, was ready for a fight to the death. Bell and Lloyd opened fire on Thompson, which the latter returned. The officers wounded Thompson in three places and he is probably fatally injured. As soon as Thompson had emptied his gun the officers, whose own pistols were emptied, fell upon him with bare hands and made him a prisoner.

As soon as the shots were heard on the inside of the lumber yard the mob on the outside numbered fully 5,000 persons. Soon a rumor spread that five officers had been killed by the desperate man in the lumber yard. As the story was repeated the crowd became more excited and surged in a great mass about the spot where Thompson lay. At this time the police patrol wagon came dashing through the crowd and soon the officers came out, dragging Thompson with them and holding their empty revolvers in their hands.

The mob then threw themselves upon the officers and were only prevented from attacking Thompson by the declaration that he was dead. With men hanging on the steps of the wagon and demanding the life of the wounded prisoner, the race was made to the station and the prisoner was carried into the police hospital. The story was then spread that he was dead and the mob quieted.

County Attorney McLean had been an implacable foe to gambling. He had led a hundred raids since he had been in office and last fall the gamblers opposed him at the polls, but he was re-elected. He was a son of the first railroad commissioner of Texas and former member of congress.

There is talk here of ordering every gambler out of the city at once and more severe measures are advocated in some cases.

FOUR PERISH IN STORM.

Mother and Her Three Children Frozen to Death.

Bathurst, N. B., March 23.—Word has been received here of the loss of four lives in the severe blizzard which swept over the eastern provinces Wednesday night. Mrs. John Comeau and three of her children were frozen to death at St. Simon, a small inland village.

The wind, which reached a velocity of sixty-five miles an hour, carried off the roof of the Comeau dwelling. Comeau took one child to the nearest house a quarter of a mile distant, but in attempting to return for the others, lost his way in the storm. When Comeau reached home he found his wife and three children frozen to death.

LETTERS FROM THAW

WILL FIGURE IN HEARING OF LUNACY COMMISSION IF ONE IS APPOINTED.

New York, March 23.—The district attorney's office has made public several letters supposedly written by Harry K. Thaw and to which District Attorney Jerome has referred in court and had marked as state exhibits. These are expected to figure in the hearing of the lunacy commission if Judge Fitzgerald decides to appoint one. The letters have to do chiefly with matters personal to Thaw and are of no special interest except as they may have a possible bearing on the state of mind of Stanford White's slayer.

The status of the case is this: Affidavits have been handed in by the prosecution to show that Thaw is a paranoiac, who, although legally responsible when he killed Stanford White, is now in such a state of mental incapacity as to be unable to consult intelligently with his counsel and hence should not be on trial for his life. The defense is now preparing its affidavits to the contrary and the matter will come before the court on Tuesday. Meantime the jury is excused until Wednesday, when the judge may determine whether a commission in lunacy shall be appointed.

Most of Friday's proceedings were in the nature of explanations by counsel on the question of personal privilege raised by District Attorney Jerome's conditional threat of calling counsel of record for the defense to account before the appellate court for unprofessional conduct, should it appear that he had knowledge of his client's alleged mental incompetency. Speaking to this point, Mr. Jerome referred to the tension under which he had been working and denying any intent to charge Mr. Hartridge, the counsel of record, with unprofessional conduct.

For the first time since the jury box was filed, all the women of Thaw's family were awaiting him in the courtroom when the proceedings opened. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, his wife, sat between Mrs. Thaw and the Countess of Yarmouth, while Mrs. Carnegie, a sister, sat in the next row with Josiah Thaw. On coming in, Harry Thaw smiled and bowed to his wife and then to the others of the party.

The jury, which had filed in, was instructed by the judge to return on Wednesday, and left.
